

Constitution Day 2019 - Statement of Principles

As attorneys, law professors, and former judges with a wide variety of political beliefs and affiliations, we are convinced that our nation's current election spending framework is a root cause of dysfunction in our political system and requires fundamental reform.

We believe that the Constitution guarantees every citizen the right to participate meaningfully in the political process.

We believe in a political system where all citizens can trust that their ideas have a fair chance of being heard by their representatives.

We believe that, in our system of representative democracy, officeholders should be responsive to the people they serve.

We therefore support a Constitutional amendment that would secure these rights and the American republic by enabling reasonable limits on political spending. We commit to engage as citizens, informing ourselves and offering input while Americans across the political spectrum collaborate to craft, pass, and ratify such an amendment.
